

Sunday, August 14th 2011, 4:00 AM

CNN, NSA and CIA heads to discuss war on terror

Is it time to end the war on terror? That's the provocative question that will be discussed on Sept. 7, when Intelligence Squared U.S. hosts a live debate at NYU's Skirball Center for the Performing Arts in Greenwich Village. The Oxford-style argument, to be broadcast by NPR and live-streamed by Slate, will include CNN national security analyst Peter Bergen and Homeland Security Assistant Secretary Juliette Kayyem arguing for the motion. Former NSA and CIA director Michael Hayden and former Homeland Security policy adviser Richard Falkenrath will take the opposing view.

Read more: http://www.nydailynews.com/gossip/2011/08/14/2011-08-14 snookis dad hits the town flaunting money using shore star as bragging rights b.html#ixzz1 VjUOTB69